B2B crypto lending infrastructure today

Credit unions are locked out of crypto lending.

140M Americans trust their credit union over any bank. But when members want to unlock liquidity from their Bitcoin or Ethereum holdings, they're forced to go to D2C lenders — or sell, triggering a taxable event. The regulatory complexity is the barrier, not the appetite.

01 No compliant crypto lending infrastructure exists for NCUA-regulated institutions

02 D2C competitors (Nexo, Ledn, SALT) aren't B2B — they compete with CUs, not serve them

03 Younger members with crypto assets are migrating to fintech — CUs are losing them

04 No risk assessment model purpose-built for crypto collateral under NCUA guidelines

The invisible infrastructure layer credit unions need.

Crypto-Collateralized Loans

Members borrow against BTC/ETH at 8–12% APR. Real-time LTV monitoring with automated margin calls.

Compliance-First Architecture

ERC-3643 on-chain identity, KYC/AML, jurisdiction gating. Built to NCUA guidelines from day one. Patent pending.

Core Banking Integrations

Jack Henry Banno (certified), FIS Code Connect (4 APIs), Corelation KeyBridge — all built and live.

DACS™ Risk Assessment

Nine-pillar proprietary model purpose-built for crypto collateral under NCUA guidelines. Patent pending.

FHE-DACS™ Privacy Layer

Member data encrypted before risk assessment begins. Decisions computed without exposing raw inputs. Patent pending.

TPSOE™ Tax Intelligence

Ranks assets by embedded tax liability. Members learn what to pledge and how much they save vs. selling.

The largest untapped lending opportunity in credit union history.

TAM	SAM	SOM
$150B+	$15–25B	$1.2M → $36M
Untapped Crypto Lending Gap	NCUA-Regulated Credit Unions	ARR
3-Year Revenue Ramp
56M Americans hold crypto. Less than 1% can borrow against it through a regulated institution.	4,800 credit unions. 140M members. An estimated 21M hold crypto with no compliant path to liquidity.	Y1: 10 CUs × 100 loans/mo = $1.2M Y2: 50 CUs × 150 loans/mo = $9M Y3: 150 CUs × 200 loans/mo = $36M

"Credit unions are sitting on the largest untapped lending opportunity in their history. Ethereum is the infrastructure layer that makes it accessible."
